Record 15 million Texans registered to Vote!

Yes! By the strong efforts of many grassroots organizations we have been able to achieve a record goal of registered voters. Texas has 15,015,700 voters registered according to a preliminary estimate — over 777,000 more than were registered in time for the March primaries.

Let me make this as clear as I can.

WE STILL HAVE WORK TO DO!

Through the efforts of many organizations we have registered or motivated people to register to vote and many of them were Latinos or Hispanics. I know that the two organizations that I have had the privilege to work with have just begun and will continue to work hard in the Latino and Hispanic Community.

These two organizations are the Hispanic Caucus of Tarrant County and the Latino Democrats of Denton County. They have a membership of community leaders that for years have fought long and hard for their respective communities and these leaders are teaching new comers that have moved here like myself what needs to be done and why. The next phase is to inform the voters about the candidates and solutions and allow them to make their own determination as to which candidate and solutions fit in with their point of view. That is our democracy and the American way. We must fight against corporate money flooding our elections with dirty money, trying to influence our vote. Here locally KOCHPAC funded by the KOCH brothers have dumped thousands of dollars of campaign contributions into races. As reported by Rollingstone magazine and other publications Koch industries has been dumping TOXIC waste into our TEXAS lands for years. Are we were not good enough to worry about our health and our children's health. Just think what if this TOXIC waste starts to seep into our drinking water. I would say you have another "FLINT MICHIGAN" on your hands. I always say follow the money and it will lead you to the reason. They are dumping funds into a local politician's race to help him win and Ron Simmons – Republican for Texas House District 65 is the chairman of and sits on various committees that make the laws that allow the KOCH brothers to dump TOXIC waste into our TEXAS lands. Ron Simmons is trying to do a magic trick showing us the shiny things in his hands so that we are distracted and don't pay attention to the things that are in his head. That is why I support Alex Mendoza for this seat. Alex has a plan to protect our TEXAS lands from TOXIC waste dumpers. He has many of the attributes and points of view that match not only with the Latino community, but with the community as a whole. One of the goals of the two organizations is to encourage Latinos and Latinas to run for office up and down the ballot. That way we can finally have representative government. Look at Alex Mendoza plans on his website and make your own determination. He comes from a Mexican Immigrant family, is a Marine Corps veteran, graduate from the University of North Texas, business owner and runs charities that empower single mothers to provide for themselves and their families in two countries. I encourage all Latinos and Latinas to go to the polls starting October 24, 2016 and on the last day November 8, 2016.

Letter from The Publisher: History Will

Record this election as the (Dirty laundry election) as if you have any past sins/dirt it will come out in the rinse cycle. Hillary emails, Bill who is not running was made to face his former sex scandal accusers in last debate. So much that after last debate Alex from Lubbock posted on face book "That's it, am not voting for Bill". Funny but ugly at the same, what is not funny is all the ladies that have reported being sexually assaulted by Trump. Many I spoke to shared that they felt compelled to take a shower after the debate.

It appears that this was the tipping point for many Republicans that had given their support while holding their nose. It was not when he attacked the Mexican community by the way if you think well that's not me I am a Mexican-American, think again. Just ask Judge Curiel an American of Mexican descent and of course he has not stopped there he has attacked Muslims, Veterans, POWs, Handicapped people and on and on. But now he has gone too far, he has attacked American White Woman. And please do not suggest that I am being racist because I am not, I am just being real. But hey if that what it takes to stop a monster, I am ok with it.

Now it is up to all good people to go out and vote, to ensure that all know that we as a people will not tolerate this type of rhetoric and behavior. He needs to be trounced in order to ensure we do not get others like him coming behind him. This I believe will be good for both parties, a cleansing if you will. And to be clear I do believe in the two party system, however the Republican party has allowed itself to be hijacked by a Wolf in Tea Party clothing. We must have balance and work together to assure our country continues to be the light of Freedom in the world.

Matilde gets to vote.

Grandma Tillie

Actually no one calls her Matilda...everyone calls her Grandma or Grandma Tillie...but Matilda is on her voter registration card. My 90-year-old grandmother immigrated to the US (in California) from Mexico when she was 23 years old...marrying a Mexican-American citizen.

She became a citizen, here in Texas, under President Reagan's amnesty plan. She started out working as a waitress and eventually became a bi-lingual secretary working for the YMCA. At 90 years old, she still has her wits about her...she still drives her car, she lives alone and can cook up the best Mexican food on the planet! Believe it or not, she is computer literate...she has a Facebook page and writes emails to family all over the world, and even plays video games with my kids.

My grandmother was raised Catholic but by spending over forty years in California she has adapted an "open minded" and unpretentious edge you would not expect. She is non-judging, has extreme compassion for people of all races, gender and sexual orientation, and is the most generous woman I have ever known. I have learned a lot from this wonderful woman and she touches everyone's heart as soon as they meet her.

But on October 24th I have the honor of taking her to vote for the next president of the United States. This isn't her first election. She cast her first vote ever for President Bill Clinton and she attended her first political rally in Dallas in 2008 when Hillary was in town. She admits that she was disappointed when our girl got beaten by President Obama. But we both recovered quickly and cast our vote for the Democratic ticket...the "party of the people". After all, "people" are what is most important to her, so she naturally supports the "party of the people"...Democrats.

She is excited to vote in what she says is the most important election of her life. She says this not for the reasons you might think. Not because she is 90 years old and this could very well be her last election...her mother lived to be 104 (so we expect my grandmother vote again). And not because she finally gets to see the first female president (a woman for whom she has a tremendous amount of respect) win a presidential election. No...This is the most important election because the stakes have never been higher. She fears what a Trump presidency would bring on the country she loves and the impact it would have on her 5 living children, 17 grandchildren, 13 great grandchildren and 1 great, great grandchild.

Yes...on October 24th, Matilde gets to cast her vote on behalf of all the people she loves. I look forward to being with her on election night on November 8th and seeing the joy on her face when Hillary wins...for the people!

Dementia

by Dorothy Kuhn

For many, there's nothing your doctor can say that's scarier than "You have dementia." Dementia robs us of so much. Dementia happens when your brain loses more and more brain tissue, brain cells. While our good doctors can diagnose dementia, they tell us they cannot fix it. You can prevent dementia when you act early, very early.

The earliest signs of dementia are the subtle ways in which your brain and your body "talk", to each other. This brain-body "conversation" goes on within you continually, ceaselessly. Just like a person-to-person conversations, the brain-body conversation can get off track. When it does get off track, the early damage shows up in small and important ways. Here are some of the subtle signs to look for and to act on quickly:

- 1. Tremor in hand or foot, especially in writing or other fine work
- 2. Weakness in a limb
- 3. Spasms or jerking
- 4. Head forward of shoulders
- 5. One side of body "curling" in a bit
- 6. Handwriting not as good
- 7. Others notice smells, but you don't (and you used to)
- 8. "Swimmy" vision, especially in one eye
- 9. Feeling "foggy headed"
- 10. Forgetful, and not able to back-track to get the memory

Why act quickly? Loosing brain tissue (neurons) is like termites in your foundation. What they've eaten away is gone forever. Rebuilding is possible, but the greater the damage, the harder, longer, and more expensive the recovery.

So what's behind this loss of brain tissue? The good news is: You're in control of the common things that trigger your body to attack your own tissues. There are four types: What you put in your body, on your body, have around your body, and what you do with your body.

To get more so you can avoid dementia and related chronic conditions including diabetes, go to www.DorothyKuhn.com

AUTHOR'S NOTE: "Dementia" is an umbrella term for disruptive memory loss or unclear thinking. The most common form of dementia is Alzheimer's. Other forms include Parkinson's, Lewy Body and more.

To be a Volunteer is to be Humble

I've been called an activist, an organizer and a leader, and sometimes a good golfer. What I really am most of the time is a Volunteer for the church.

Our Catholic church has many hard working Priests. They do a good job each Sunday telling you about God and how He should be the center of our life. They do a good job telling us how the Old Testament ties into the New Testament but they have a bigger job beyond that. They have a huge job of trying to save souls and at the same time trying to run the Church business and activities. We need to help our Priests in fact it is our duty to do that.

Remember the bible verse about a seed is just a seed until it falls onto the soil. If it falls on good soil it will grow into a tree or a vine with many branches. When we use this description of seeds turning in to a tree or a vine we should look at it as, what are we doing in our lives? Are our lives like trees that do well for the world by providing shade, fruit and a place where birds can rest and build a nest? Or are we like a standalone branch waiting to become a whittle or shaving that will be cast into a fire. We have to think about what we are doing with our lives. When we seek God and try come closer to him he will assist us by giving us grace, blessings and knowledge which will make us better people. We then must share this information with others who have not heard or learned about it. There is a whole world out there. Many people have not been taught or told about Jesus. We have to help build an environment of good soil for those people.

I believe it is our Christian's duty to work and help keep the Church strong and active. We do that by evangelizing and by volunteering in our church community.

We need to be helping our Priest save souls by becoming involved with some of the work that it takes to form a strong church community. There is strength in numbers and by having a strong church community a lot can be done. There are many different needs within the church community.

There is a need that caters to the youth. We must keep them interested and active. The young like to hang out with each other. A strong Church community can organize and help sponsor functions to cater to most of these social desires and needs while keeping God in their site. Strong Christian values are maintained when people are around other Christians with the same values.

There is a need for Christian discussion or educational groups that can help a lot of people including uninformed adults. Some adults may have missed a lot of information about our Catholic faith and may not have the tools to defend the Church. Take for instance, someone from one of the many denominations out there, that can say something to them like "well it says in the Bible that you should not call a man "Father" and you Catholics do that. Oh man this is where it all begins. The poor guy is pulled into another Church because he did not know our Catholic beliefs and teachings.

A strong Catholic community within each parish can help with informational programs that will make people stronger Catholics. They can create Bible study programs, start RCI classes. They can create a social environment that will make it enjoyable to be around other Christians as we enjoy each other's company while we learn about God.

Church communities are formed by people who are willing to volunteer. Volunteers are special people because they are willing to give up some of their free time to do good for others. They perform one of Jesus main teachings which is to be humble and to serve.

Your Fiend in Christ,

Joe M. Govea, a devout Catholic whose duty is to evangelize

Presidential Debate II – the Big Brawl

The much anticipated debate between Trump and Clinton is now history. On the aftermath of Presidential Debate I – the Mauling, this debate like the first debate all that Trump had to do was show up and act like la buffoon and Clinton presidential and he would be declared the winner. This time he exceeded expectations, the buffoon was dressed in silk. The Spanish have a saying about this, “aunque la mona se vista de ceda, mona es y mona se queda.” The Italians put it this way, “a Shepherder dressed in silk, still smells of sheep”. Trump acted like Trump, puro macho.

So it was with Trump. Still sporting claw marks from the first debate and a huge wounded ego. This time he came prepared for the debate. He was not going to get mauled again. He had his A Team, all of the women that accused Bill Clinton of sexual misconduct. That was his front line of defense against the released video where he speaks of grabbing a woman’s private part. They were there for the world to see that no matter how sinful it was what he did, what Bill Clinton did was much worse.

Trump claims that what he said was no more than locker room chatter. Obviously, he has never been to a locker room. This claim is so outlandish that only a diehard Trump supporter would ever believe this. Bottom line, he did not come to debate he came to get even. He was on attack mode. His eyes were brimming with red and blood was coming from the side of the mouth. And Hillary was his target. He was going to whoop her. This is my takeaway from this debate. Hillary was cool and composed. She took his shots. Trump tried hard to distract her. He could not. Trump is totally unqualified for the office of president. He does not have a working knowledge of any issue domestic or international. His bullying behavior will get him nowhere in the international scene. The elephant in the room needs to be returned to the circus.

Presidential Debate III – It’s The Final Countdown - Preview

With less than 30 days to go until the election the Trump Campaign has decided that it is pulling all stops on civility. The engines have all been started and the Trump Rocket is on the way to November 8, engines abasing. The strategy is set and the venue is the gutter. The old saying is “desperate times require desperate measures” and when you are double digits behind on major polls you go for broke. Simply Trump has nothing to lose except the election. For Trump this election is not about issues it is not about America it is about the monumental ego of a decrepit old man.

No matter what negative information is reported about him Trump the campaign will respond with lies, lies, and more lies. They are going to saturate the airwaves with lies, lies, and more lies about Hillary Clinton. The plan is to keep Clinton busy responding to the lies. Trump has dug a hole so deep his only strategy is to bring Hillary down to his level.

You couple Trump’s lies with the Russians hacking the DNC emails and the formula is bad for our democracy. The Russians want Trump to win. They too have pulled all stops on international diplomacy. Trump and all surrogates have their marching orders, Trump pukes and the surrogates clean up the vomit. It is now a patriotic duty to vote. We cannot let the Russians decide who our next president is going to be. The sleeping giant, sleeps no more. Vote.

“This time he exceeded expectations, the buffoon was dressed in silk. The Spanish have a saying about this, ‘aunque la mona se vista de ceda, mona es y mona se queda.’ The Italians put it this way, ‘a Shepherder dressed in silk, still smells of sheep.’ Trump acted like Trump, puro macho.”

The Presidential Campaign 2016

The presidential campaign can be characterized by phrases like media-driven with focus on the negatives, no other campaign like it in the history of the country, debates bypassing discussion of the issues facing the nation yet filled with personal attacks. Sadly, the result is that a percentage of the voting public is threatening to stay away from the polls and some are saying “ya pa que.”

There was a time in political history when the informed voter could select a candidate by judging their apparent principles, policies, and politics. Nowadays, not so much. That’s not a valid excuse for not going to the polls. There is too much at stake. November 8, 2016 is not just about the election of the President and Vice President. The ballot will include those running for the office of U.S. Representative, Railroad Commissioner, Board of Education, Justice of Supreme Court, Court of Criminal Appeals Judge, State Senator and State Representative. (Enhanced Sample Ballots with links to the candidate’s info can be accessed at www.vote-tx.org/ Election in Spanish info can be obtained at www.votetexas.gov/es/votacion).

For those that are saying that they are not going to vote because there is not much of a choice, the other candidates for the offices listed further down on the ballot still need votes especially at the local level where a few votes can make the difference between the candidate being elected or not.

The election of court justices and judges who scrutinize statutes, regulations, and make judicial decisions can affect citizens at the state and local level. Supreme Court justices are nominated by the President but must be confirmed by the Senators that are elected by the voter. The phrase “My vote doesn’t count anyway” is a dangerous myth. A vote does count whether directly or indirectly, but it counts. ¡Su voto es su voz!

The Constitution provided for the creation of three branches of government, the Executive represented by the Presidency, the Legislative represented by the Congress, and the Judicial represented by the Courts. Along with the three branches, the Constitution provided a system of checks and balances, so no one branch could take absolute power. The separation of the three powers also works as a system of checks and balances.

The answer to whether or not voting in this election is important, can be answered with a resounding, yes. According to the Constitution, the Presidency is only one part of the three branches that makes our government function. There are other candidates listed on this year’s ballot depending on the voter to make it to the polls this November.

This month President Obama at a Democratic rally in North Carolina remarked that when he ran for office, he had his disagreements about the issues with his opponents, but he believed that the agenda that was set by the party was for America and he thought that at the time he represented a different political party and a different philosophy. The President called the differences between his opponents and himself, the nature and the price of democracy.

The 2016 Campaign has revealed differences and changes in the political party platform. There are few voters who bother to read the party platforms although they are readily available online Democratic Party Platform www.demconvention.com/wp-content/uploads/2016/07/Democratic-Party-Platform-7.21.16-no-lines.pdf and Republican Party

Platform www.gop.com/the-2016-republican-party-platform. Stephen Engel, a political science professor at Bates College says of these documents, they are “an opportunity for the party base to assert its principles, figure out what its principles are, to show its own strength.” There are candidates who are depending that the party platforms will serve as the “agenda” and the “philosophy” that the President referred to, and once again become the documents that define the vision of their party, serving as a guide to the voters as they make a selection on the ballot on Election Day. ¡Su voto es su voz!

Family:

My father came to the United States from a small town in Mexico over 40 years ago seeking a better life. He worked as a dishwasher and then learned a trade—repairing TVs and VCRs. My dad had an entrepreneurial spirit, just like me, and decided to open up his own electronics repair shop in Mesquite, Texas in the 1980s, which eventually grew to Garland, East Dallas, and Pleasant Grove. He currently works in Mesquite.

My mother was born and raised in Dallas, Texas. She worked as a bank secretary and as a Bilingual Case Manager at New Beginning Center in Garland, a non-profit center for women and children who were victims of domestic violence. My mom recently retired from the City of Garland where she's worked for the past 11 years. I'm proud of my mom because while she was working full time, she decided to go back to school at night and on the weekends and earned a Bachelor's Degree in Sociology from the University of North Texas at Dallas.

I have a younger brother and two step-brothers.

Parents Names & cities which they reside:

Nestor & Rosalinda- Dallas

Marital status:

Single

High school and graduation year:

Ursuline Academy of Dallas, 1999 (all-girls Catholic school)

I was one of a handful of girls who lived in Pleasant Grove and attended Ursuline at the time. My experience at Ursuline opened my eyes to a world that existed beyond my barrio. When I saw the beautiful mansions surrounding the school, it gave me something to which I could aspire, but I also realized that there was a great wealth gap in our city. I knew at that moment that I had a responsibility to get educated and then to use my skills to serve. Education would be my key to unlocking and opening doors for others.

LULAC National Youth president term and lessons learned 1999:

As National Youth President, I had the honor of serving on the LULAC National Board advocating for and helping work on issues that were important to young people. I spoke with students about the importance of going to college and advocated for attention to education, college grants and scholarships, and encouraged students to get engaged in the political process. Serving on the National Board of the nation's largest and oldest Latino civil rights organization was great training for service on other boards. I learned how to negotiate and advocate for issues. I learned from lots of trailblazers in our community about the importance of service and standing up for people without a voice. I decided to attend law school and become an attorney because I believed learning the law was one of the best ways to serve the community. I now want to use my skills as an advocate and attorney to write laws that address the needs of hard-working Texas families.

Her advice to young people choosing a career:

My advice to young people is to dream big and do not let anything stand in your way. It doesn't matter if you were the first in your family to go to college or if you grew up in a low-income neighborhood; nothing can stop you from achieving your dreams. Remember also to give back to your community and do not forget where you came from. Our community needs you to finish college and to be a role model for future generations.

Her advice to young people interested in a political office:

VICTORIA NEAVE

Do it. We need more young people engaged in the political process. I first volunteered for campaigns when I was in high school. I got some of my girlfriends and we went knocking on doors for a candidate and handed out her literature. Get registered to vote and make sure your friends get registered. Voting is easy and if young people organized and voted in higher numbers, our laws would be different. If you want to get exposure now, join our campaign at www.VictoriaforTexas.com.

A quote from her as to why she is worthy of our communities' support:

I grew up in the barrio in Dallas in a humble family with a father who with a sixth grade education. I understand the value of education and how it opens up the door to opportunity. Thanks to my parents' sacrifices, I was able to go to law school, work at one of the top ten law firms in the country and then start my own firm. My parents told me to never forget where I came from.

More than 27,000, or 1 in 6 people, in our House District 107 (Mesquite, Garland, East Dallas) live in poverty according to research by the Texas Legislative Council. Over 88% of these are Nuestra Voz De North Texas 9 families with children under 18-years-old and more than half of are single-mother households.

Education is how we break the cycle of poverty. Education is how we prepare our kids to compete in today's economy. Education is how we attract new businesses and put Dallas and Texas back on the leadership track. Unfortunately, since 2011, the Texas Legislature has chosen to backtrack on school funding just as our school populations are growing. They have had to be sued by 600 school districts both rich and poor alike. Our opponent has gone quietly along with the status quo all along. We've seen the in-fighting within the Republican party on the national stage, and they continue to move farther and farther from what mainstream communities need. I will fight to fully restore the billions of dollars in funding cuts that our opponent gutted from our public schools.

I will also work to raise wages and ensure equal pay for equal work for women.

Nearly two-thirds of minimum wage workers are women. Texas women earn 79 cents on the dollar for the same work as a man. African-American women earn 59 cents on the dollar and Latinas earn just 44 cents on the dollar in Texas. This is unacceptable. When women are paid the same as their male counterparts for the same work, the whole family benefits. There are lots of legislative issues that we must tackle this upcoming legislative session and we are working hard to earn the votes of our community in East Dallas, Garland, and Mesquite. I'm an advocate. I'm a bridge-builder; and I will fight to make sure our children get the education they need to be Texas' future leaders. Learn more and join us at www.VictoriaforTexas.com.

A Fort Worth Eye-sore – the Uhlmann Grain Elevators

By Franco

The Mexican-American community at the Worth Heights neighborhood traditionally had three major sources of employment: The Texas Steel foundry (Tejas Steel), the Uhlmann Grain Elevators (Los Molinos), and the Nash Manufacturing company (Los Patines). These were convenient places to work, a ten-minute walk at most. They offered a stable source of income for most residents without ever having to leave the neighborhood. Nash continues to operate while the other two employers no longer exist.

Texas Steel and Astute Mexicans

The history of Mexican Americans in the Worth Heights area stretches back to the late 1800 century as documented by Mexican-American historian Felix Alvarado. The first Mexican families were miners who made their way to what is now the Worth Heights neighborhood. They shared the neighborhood with working class whites. Between 1907 and 1908 there were about 16,500 Mexicans working for the railroad companies, many of them for the Katy. When the Katy Railroad made its way through Fort Worth in 1915, it brought its Mexican workers. One thing these Mexican railroad men noticed was that there were Mexican communities living in Fort Worth, and the beautiful Mexican girls. This convinced many Mexican railroad workers to settle in Fort Worth.

These Mexican arrivals were worldly men, they came from Central Mexico avoiding the Tejanos in South Texas and making their way from El Paso to the railroad companies that transported them across the central plains region of the United States. They were an ambitious lot, like the founder of the Salinas family, who played an important role in bringing thousands of Mexicans to Fort Worth. He was a railroad engineer trained in Mexico who worked for the Katy railroad.

A big opportunity came when the great steel strike hit the US in 1919. The union members at the Texas Steel foundry, mostly Italians, went on strike. Texas Steel responded by recruiting Mexicans from the neighborhood. Texas Steel sent some of them to Mexico to enlist their townspeople with a promise of a job. Entire families moved to Worth Heights, they came from the states of San Luis, Jalisco, and Michoacán. This worked out so well for Texas Steel that Steel mills in Chicago started recruiting Mexican workers from Fort Worth. Hundreds of Mexicans went to Chicago from Fort Worth to work the steel mills. Texas Steel foundry no longer exists; it was razed to the ground.

Uhlmann Grain Elevators the Eye Sore of Worth Heights Neighborhood.

The other major source of employment for Worth Heights residents was the Uhlmann Grain Elevators. Located at the corner of West Dickson and Alice Streets. This was a dangerous place to work because of the airborne contaminants from grain storage structures, which can develop toxic gases from grains. Also the grains were fumigated, and these pesticides can cause cancer. Some died of lung cancer after years of work at the grain elevators, one such person was my uncle Fernando who had to quit the grain elevators after developing lung problems, spitting blood, fevers, eventually he would die of lung cancer. Who knows how many others died from the same condition.

The infamous grain silos still stand, an eyesore for the neighborhood. Abandoned, creepy, they continue to generate hordes of vermin rats which invade the neighborhood houses throughout the year, especially during the winter. A few years ago African immigrants made the silos their home. At dusk it was common to see entire families of African refugees making a beeline toward the Silos, getting ready to settle for the night.

Another group that uses the silos are the homeless drug addicts and alcoholics who litter the silos with urine and feces. Some residents of the neighborhood have heard rumors that developers want to tear down the silos and build apartments on the site, something that seems difficult to believe because it will take millions of dollars just to demolish the silos and remove the debris. Also the prospect of building apartments in that location doesn't go well with residents of Worth Heights who would much prefer to see a park built on the site with a memorial to all the Mexican families who founded this proud community in Fort Worth.

Some Worth Heights residents voiced their lack of confidence in the city government to take any action to remove this eye sore. One resident who identified himself as Jose stated, "the city will send out their code enforcement agents to slap a violation on our homes for any small detail, yet they will not give themselves a violation slip for the huge mess they are responsible for in our neighborhood, the Molinos (silos)."

Matilde llega a votar

En realidad nadie le llama Matilda. . . todo el mundo le llama abuela o abuela Tillie. . . pero Matilda está en su tarjeta de registro de votante. Mi abuela tiene 90 años de edad, y emigró a los Estados Unidos (a California) de México cuando ella tenía 23 años...Se caso con un ciudadano mexicano-americano. Ella se convirtió en ciudadana, aquí en Texas, bajo el programa de amnistía del Presidente Reagan. Ella comenzó a trabajar como camarera y eventualmente se convirtió en una secretaria bi-lingual que trabajaba para el YMCA (Asociación de jóvenes cristianos) . A los 90 años de edad, ella todavía tiene su ingenio sobre ella. . .ella todavía conduce su coche, vive sola y puede cocinar la mejor comida mexicana en el planeta! Lo creas o no, ella tiene conocimiento del internet. . . ella tiene una página en Facebook y escribe correos electrónicos a familiares en todo el mundo, e incluso juega videojuegos con mis hijos.

Mi abuela fue criada como católica, pero después de vivir más de cuarenta años en California ha adaptado una "mente abierta" y sin pretensiones que no esperarías. Ella no juzga, tiene extrema compasión para personas de todas las razas, la orientación sexual y el género, y es la más generosa mujer que he conocido. He aprendido mucho de esta mujer maravillosa, y ella toca el corazón de cada uno cuando le conoce.

Pero el 24 de octubre tengo el honor de llevarla a votar por el próximo presidente de los Estados Unidos. Esta no es su primera elección. Ella emitió su primer voto por el Presidente Bill Clinton y ella asistió a su primer mitin político en Dallas en 2008, cuando Hillary estaba en la ciudad. Ella admite que ella estaba decepcionada cuando nuestra chica perdió al presidente Obama. Pero ambos hemos recuperado rápidamente y votamos para los demócratas. . .el "Partido del pueblo". Después de todo, la "gente" es lo más importante para ella, por lo que naturalmente apoya el "Partido del pueblo". . .Los Demócratas.

Ella está emocionada y dice que esta es la más importante elección de su vida. Ella dice que esto no por las razones que usted podría pensar. No porque ella es de 90 años y esto podría muy bien ser su última elección. . .Su madre vivió 104 (así que esperamos que mi abuela vote de nuevo). Y no porque ella finalmente llega a ver a la primera mujer presidenta (una mujer con quien tiene una enorme cantidad de respeto) gana una elección presidencial. No. . . Esta es la más importante elección porque las apuestas nunca han sido mayores. Teme que un triunfo presidencial traería sobre el país que ella ama y el impacto que tendría en sus 5 hijos vivos, 17 nietos, 13 bisnietos y 1 gran nieto. Sí. . .en octubre 24th, Matilde asistirá a las urnas a depositar su voto en nombre de todas las personas que ama. Espero estar con ella en la noche de las elecciones el 8 de noviembre y ver la alegría en su rostro cuando Hillary gane. . .para la gente!

La Campaña Electoral de 2016

Por Linda Carrasco

La campaña electoral se ha descrito con frases como impulsada por los medios de comunicación, enfocada en los aspectos negativos, ninguna campaña como esta en la historia del país, debates sin discusión sobre los problemas que enfrentan la nación, una campana llena de ataques personales. Lamentablemente, el resultado es que un porcentaje de los votantes están declarando que no se presentarían a votar y están pensando "ya pa 'que." No se les puede culpar considerando lo que ha transcurrido.

La historia política registra que antes los votantes informados podían informarse de un candidato con examinar sus principios personales, cuales declaraciones políticas había apoyado, y su orientación política. Hoy en día, no se puede juzgar fácilmente. Pero eso no es una excusa válida para no votar. Hay demasiado en juego.

La fecha del 8 de noviembre del 2016 no se trata solamente de la elección del Presidente y

Vicepresidente. La lista de votación incluye los candidatos para el Representante de EE.UU., la oficina del Director de Ferrocarriles, la Junta de Educación, el Tribunal Supremo, candidatos para los jueces del Tribunal de Apelaciones Penal, el senador estatal y el representante del estado. (Boletas ejemplares con enlaces a la información de los candidatos se pueden alcanzar en www.vote-tx.org/Election y en español en www.votetexas.gov/es/votacion).

Para los que dicen que no hay mucha opción para el oficio de Presidente y que por eso no votarán, hay otros candidatos que se encuentran más abajo en la lista de votación que todavía necesitan su voto especialmente los del nivel local, donde unos cuantos votos pueden determinar si es elegido o no. La elección de los jueces de los tribunales y jueces que analizan los estatutos, los reglamentos, y las decisiones judiciales que hacen afectan a toda persona en la ciudad y el estado. Los Jueces del Tribunal Supremo son nombrados por el Presidente, pero tienen que ser confirmados por los senadores que son elegidos por los votantes.

La frase "De todos modos, mi voto no cuenta" es pensamiento expresado muy peligroso al sistema político. Un voto cuenta ya sea directamente o indirectamente, pero cuenta. ¡Su voto es su voz!

La Constitución establece la creación de tres ramas del gobierno, Ejecutiva representada por la Presidencia, Legislativa representada por el Congreso, y Judicial representada por la Corte Suprema y otras cortes. Junto con las tres ramas, la Constitución formó un sistema de cuentas y balances, para que ninguna de las ramas pudiera tomar el poder absoluto. Cada rama tiene sus propios poderes y tiene la capacidad de servir como control para garantizar que otra rama no abuse de su poder.

La pregunta de si importa que la persona elegible para votar tome su lugar en la casilla electoral se puede contestar con, "Absolutamente, sí." De acuerdo con la Constitución, la Presidencia es sólo una rama de poder de las tres. Hay otros candidatos que están contando con el voto este año y dependiendo de que los votantes se presenten en los lugares de votación este noviembre.

Este mes, el Presidente Obama en una campaña demócrata en Norte Carolina explicaba que cuando se presentó como candidato de la Presidencia, él tuvo sus desacuerdos acerca de los problemas políticos con sus oponentes, pero durante ese tiempo él creía que la agenda que propuso su partido fue el mejor programa para los Estados Unidos y simplemente pensaba que representaba una filosofía diferente. El Presidente llamó las diferencias entre él y sus oponentes parte de la naturaleza y el precio de la democracia.

La campaña de 2016 ha revelado las diferencias y los cambios en la plataforma de los partidos políticos. Cuando fueron formuladas cada plataforma reveló lo que ha cambiado. Hay pocos votantes que han leído las plataformas de los par-tidos a pesar de que son disponibles en el Internet, la Plataforma del Partido Demócrata en www.dem-convention.com/wp-content/uploads/2016/07/Democratic-Party-Platform-7.21.16-no-lines.pdf y la Plataforma del Partido Republicano en www.gop.com/the-2016-republicana-partido-plataforma. Stephen Engel, Profesor de Ciencias Políticas en Bates College dice que son documentos que demuestran la oportunidad para que los partidos afirmen sus principios, decidan cuales son los principios del partido y enseñan la área de sus fuerzas.

Hay candidatos que están dependiendo de que las plataformas de los partidos sirvan como "el agenda" y "la filosofía" de las cuales se refirió el Presidente, y que una vez más sean los documentos que definen la visión de los partidos, y que sirvan como guía para los votantes que harán su selección de candidatos el Día de las Elecciones. ¡Su voto es su voz!

"Violence as a way of achieving racial justice is both impractical and immoral. I am not unmindful of the fact that violence often brings about momentary results. Nations have frequently won their independence in battle. But in spite of temporary victories, violence never brings permanent peace."

Instruction Note:
Please use a black or blue ink pen to mark your choices on the ballot. To vote for your choice in each contest, fill in the box provided to the left of your choice. To vote for a write-in candidate, completely fill in the box provided to the left of the words "Write-in" and write in the name of the candidate on the line provided. To enter a straight-party vote (that is, a vote for all the nominees of one party), completely fill in the box to the left of the name of that party. Selecting a party automatically selects all candidates associated with that party. If you select a candidate associated with a party other than the straight-party selection, your vote for that candidate will be counted in that particular contest.

Nota de Instrucción:
Favor de usar una pluma de tinta negra o azul para marcar su boleta. Para votar por su selección en cada carrera, llene el espacio cuadrado a la izquierda de su selección. Para votar por voto escrito, llene completamente el espacio cuadrado a la izquierda de las palabras "Voto Escrito" y escriba el nombre del candidato en la línea provista. Para escoger un voto de partido completo (es decir, un voto por todos los candidatos nombrados del mismo partido político), llene completamente el espacio cuadrado a la izquierda del nombre de ese partido. Seleccionar un partido automáticamente escogerá todos los candidatos asociados con ese partido. Si selecciona un candidato asociado con un partido distinto a su selección de partido completo, su voto por ese candidato se computará en esa carrera.
